

There is first love, and there is Zaza Pachulia love

I am a man of hyperbole so take this however you like, but this is a top five day of my life. Actually, screw it, insinuating that statement may be an exaggeration cheapens this day for what it is. The weather is perfect, the Hawks beat the Lakers, and Zaza Pachulia is a god. When those things are certain, there is no such thing as over optimism.

You may remember I wrote a post about two weeks ago on this jersey.

And I said something like:

I am not kidding if we have a Zaza Pachulia and a Zaza Pcahulia on this team, my mind is going to implode. I would pay all the money I have to see a one on one game between these two. On a more realistic note, I will give you my house if you get me that jersey.

Well, unfortunately we don't have a Pachulia and a Pcahulia on the team, but as awesome should have it, I received an email from the Mr. Pachulia who does don a Hawks jersey saying he read the blog and wanted my address. After some counseling with a brown paper bag, I gave it to him, and today, the UPS man delivered the goods.

Zaza didn't even make me give him my house. The guy is a modern day saint.

The college diploma is going down. The Pcahulia is going up. Tell the kids, dreams really do come true. They really do.

Did he sign it?

And don't they let you order custom jerseys at the Hawks online store?

Way to go

I like Zaza too, maybe not to the degree you do Hawksdawg, but he is good. I haven't been on this site long, but I can tell you got a huge man crush on the guy. Nothing wrong with that, just keep it there and don't take it any further. He should get more minutes, but last night against the Lakers you couldn't ask for more from the guy. Either way its great to see him give back to the fans. That's a lot better than some of the stories I have heard about Joe (hopefully they are untrue).

That means Zaza reads this blog. That means Zaza could be one of us....

On a serious note, I think that someone the caliber of Zaza is always rewarded by true fans over the star like Joe Johnson or Jamal Crawford.

Zaza is the guy that gets the world's ugliest double-double, never brags, always has his teammates' backs, never complains being on the bench, and never gets down on himself when he has a bad game.

In short, he is THE MAN!
